
Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Warren - 2009/02/28 12:19

I know. Yet another Tour Rumour/New Album Rumour thread, but imo, if the news is true, then we're talking a big shake-up.

While I'm at it, I'd like to toss in my two cents; I think it was in '05 (possibly '06) when Denny Freeman was quoted as saying that "I like to play with Bob Dylan for awhile."

The source for the new guitarists news is arthurprecarious, and because his comments are innocuously posted in Ferris92's "April Release?" thread, which has been around for a few days (and already has nearly 500 views), they may get overlooked. Btw, songandjiggerman says "denny, not donnie." Here's what was said:

Re:April Release? 10 Hours, 39 Minutes ago

I hear that there are 10 songs which feature some of The Heartbreakers and David Hidalgo from Los Lobos. Three additional songs have been recorded for a movie.

Also the two guitarists (Stu and Donny) will be replaced on the upcoming tour. One of the replacements will be Paul James.

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Tim Out of Mind - 2009/02/28 18:02

hmm. would prefer that denny stays myself.

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by josepi - 2009/02/28 18:47

I really hope this is true!

I love this current band but i have always wanted a shake up, sometimes for no other reason than just a change.

Hopefully Dylan feels that way too.

Lets face it, Stu & Denny are no Sexton & Campbell.

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by The Wicked Drifter - 2009/02/28 19:14

I could care less about Stu, but I really hope Denny stays. He's brilliant.

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by josepi - 2009/02/28 21:04

From Stu's website:

Stu continues on Bob Dylan's never ending tour in March. Please see www.bobdylan.com for tour dates and more information.

<http://www.stukimball.com/events/>

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by JohannaMoore - 2009/02/28 23:40

I was just going to post the above.... got nothing against him either. :)

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by josepi - 2009/03/01 00:38

Same really, i never understood some peoples hatred for Stu.
Hes a solid player and certiantly a staple member of Bob's band always keeping up the rhythm guitar.
My concern with him is his lack of solos like he once did it in 2004 and 2005.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by wildfishes - 2009/03/01 02:46

I would certainly prefer Stu and Denny staying, I've grown to like them...especially if the change would be adding Paul James. Yechhh.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by josepi - 2009/03/01 11:20

wildfishes wrote:

I would certainly prefer Stu and Denny staying, I've grown to like them...especially if the change would be adding Paul James. Yechhh.

Depsite the fact that Paul James is musically a better guitarist?

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by LaughsLikeTheFlowers - 2009/03/01 14:17

I have nothing against these two as musicians. What I would really like to see, though, are equally good musicians who can also sing back-up ala Larry and Charlie. I think that would add a lot to the shows.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Lemmy Caution - 2009/03/01 15:25

josepi wrote:

wildfishes wrote:

I would certainly prefer Stu and Denny staying, I've grown to like them...especially if the change would be adding Paul James. Yechhh.

Depsite the fact that Paul James is musically a better guitarist?

As long as Bob turns up he could have the fkn muppets playing guitar

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by songanddanceman - 2009/03/01 15:36

at the moment he has.

i'd rather hear bert and ernie.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Jules Verne - 2009/03/01 15:41

LaughsLikeTheFlowers wrote:

I have nothing against these two as musicians. What I would really like to see, though, are equally good musicians who can also sing back-up ala Larry and Charlie. I think that would add a lot to the shows.

I dont think they arent backing because they cant sing but because bob dont wanna..

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Lemmy Caution - 2009/03/01 15:41

songanddanceman wrote:

at the moment he has.

i'd rather hear bert and ernie.

<http://aura.gaia.com/photos/34/330962/large/Bert-and-Ernie.gif>

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by jimmy1 - 2009/03/01 20:42

it would be nice to have a change.But if you want a complete change , then tony needs to go and get someone in to freshen it up.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Lemmy Caution - 2009/03/01 20:52

jimmy1 wrote:

it would be nice to have a change.But if you want a complete change , then tony needs to go and get someone in to freshen it up.

<http://www.thorntonwine.com/jazz/Joyce-Coolinglg.jpg>

http://www.joycecooling.com/p2p_bio.html

She could add a few backing vocals as well as a great guitarist.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Apocalypso Singer - 2009/03/02 18:53

Nice to have some rumour discussions like in the old days, changes are always wanted, right?!

Btw, any news about rehearsals: where, when, what?

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Not Henry Porter - 2009/03/02 22:13

My uncle's wife's cousin's mailman delivers to Bob residence in California. The other day he heard music coming from the house and it sounded like a raggae version of "All I Really Want To Do." Now, that's a great rumor.

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Bee Pollen - 2009/03/02 22:30 great story, not henry porter, love your uncle's wife! If Bob left the swing behind and hits the stage with raggae, now that would be a change!!! It might make the national news, it would go something like, "breaking news out of the blue, Bob Dylan to hit the stage with Bob Marley, said only with or without him, the beat goes on".

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by LaughsLikeTheFlowers - 2009/03/02 22:32

Maybe somebody at Bob's house was listening to a cover band version on Dylanradio.

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Apocalypso Singer - 2009/03/03 09:40

More like this and the NEP will become my first net visit of the day again :laugh:

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Warren - 2009/03/06 16:34

.
Courtesy of a Michele Talo and expectingrain.com:

You may not believe Wiki, but here's what it says:

"In March this year, David Hidalgo will be touring with Bob Dylan for his European Tour."

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/David_Hidalgo

The last currently scheduled show for Los Lobos is on MR 14th:

<http://www.loslobos.org/site/tour.shtml>

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by cath - 2009/03/06 16:51

Warren wrote:

.

The last currently scheduled show for Los Lobos is on MR 14th:

<http://www.loslobos.org/site/tour.shtml>

If you scroll down a little, you can see that they are playing in the USA untill july.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Warren - 2009/03/06 17:13

.

Obviously, I missed that. Thanks for the "heads up," Cath.

Possibly, Los Lobos will play on without Hidalgo, which is what Donnie Herron's band did when Herron left to play with Bob. Ftr, and perhaps worth keeping in mind, Hidalgo is a multi-instrumentalist.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by cath - 2009/03/06 17:23

If only Don Herron would go and play with Los Lobos :laugh:

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by lenny bruce - 2009/03/06 19:24

Los Lobos has been the same band for 30 years,so I doubt he would blow off Los Lobos shows.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by lenny bruce - 2009/03/06 19:26

There are a few GAPS IN THE IOBOS TOUR THOUGH, SO i GUESS A FEW SHOWS COULD BE POSSIBLE

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by cath - 2009/03/06 19:40

.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Tim Out of Mind - 2009/03/06 19:42

cath wrote:

If only Don Herron would go and play with Los Lobos :laugh:

:lol:

lol

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by PSB - 2009/03/07 01:52

Warren wrote:

Obviously, I missed that. Thanks for the "heads up," Cath.

Possibly, Los Lobos will play on without Hidalgo, which is what Donnie Herron's band did when Herron left to play with Bob. Ftr, and perhaps worth keeping in mind, Hidalgo is a multi-instrumentalist.

Not worth keeping in mind at all. Hidalgo pretty much is Los Lobos. He is the obvious leader, the main songwriter, the main singer. It would be like Dire Straits without Mark Knopfler, the Kinks without Ray Davies, the Byrds without Roger McGuinn, and a million other examples. Just because someone plays on someone's album does not mean they are going on tour with them, and ESPECIALLY when a band has an entire tour booked. There's lots of reasons musicians play on various sessions, but usually it is because a musician has a particular sound that is right for that particular song or recording.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Spaner - 2009/03/07 03:15

PSB

It would be like Dire Straits without Mark Knopfler, the Kinks without Ray Davies, the Byrds without Roger McGuinn, and a million other examples.

Like His Band without Bob Dylan :lol:

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Warren - 2009/03/07 10:21

Before I speak to what PSB said on Page 2 of this thread, I'm going to summarize the current talk about band member replacements about the tour, only. Some remarks will be repeated. If I've got it right, the talk seems to have begun with this post in Ferris92's thread, April Release?, wherein arthurprecarious said this:

Re:April Release? 1 Week ago

I hear that there are 10 songs which feature some of The Heartbreakers and David Hildago from Los Lobos. Three additional songs have been recorded for a movie.

Also the two guitarists (Stu and Donny) will be replaced on the upcoming tour. One of the replacements will be Paul James.

The emphasis is mine. Three posts later, songanddanceman said, "stu and denny." A day beyond that, precarious added that his source said that:

"...the two guitarists would be replaced."

Then, today, we have a new thread, as follows, titled, Donny is out?:

Love And Communication (User)

Fresh Boarder

Posts: 3

Donny is out? 12 Hours, 11 Minutes ago

QUOTE:

14 - David Hidalgo "In March this year, David Hidalgo will be touring with Bob Dylan for his European Tour." - (Wikipedia) from Michele Talo

Source: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/David_Hidalgo

Los Lobos page: <http://www.loslobos.org/site/band.shtml>

Could be an option...

The apparent suggestion or inference that Love And Communication seems to be making from their reference to the expectingrain news item, here, is that Hidalgo, a multi-instrumentalist, could be an option to replace multi-instrumentalist, Donny Herron. I agree. He could be. Simply put, it's possible. Now to your remarks, Peter:

PSB wrote:

Warren wrote:

Obviously, I missed that. Thanks for the "heads up," Cath.

Possibly, Los Lobos will play on without Hidalgo, which is what Donnie Herron's band did when Herron left to play with Bob. Ftr, and perhaps worth keeping in mind, Hidalgo is a multi-instrumentalist. Not worth keeping in mind at all. Sheesh! "At all?"

Hidalgo pretty much is Los Lobos. He is the obvious leader, the main songwriter, the main singer. I am aware of that. It doesn't necessarily mean that he doesn't want a change at this juncture in his life, does it?

It would be like Dire Straits without Mark Knopfler, the Kinks without Ray Davies, the Byrds without Roger McGuinn, and a million other examples. Just because someone plays on someone's album does not mean they are going on tour with them, Of course not.

and ESPECIALLY when a band has an entire tour booked. Well, as you can see, I didn't realize that, initially, until cath brought it to my attention. Had I realized that, in the beginning, I would have likely made a point of saying so. I think you know me well enough to know that that is something I'd probably do.

There's lots of reasons musicians play on various sessions, but usually it is because a musician has a particular sound that is right for that particular song or recording.

Now, I made reference, above, to one Michele Talo, the person who apparently informed expectingrain.com of the Hidalgo entry (presently, without a citation), in Wikipedia. Talo has an association with the Italian Dylan website, Maggie's Farm, as does one Paolo Vites, an Italian music journalist. They are known to each other. Vites is a person who, because of his occupation, is sometimes privy to information about musicians that isn't immediately available to the public. Vites will be known to some people, at The NEP, as Roving Gambler, his user name (or, one of them) at DylanPool.

Oh yeh, one last thing is this poster's first post:

foster (User)

Fresh Boarder

Posts: 1

Re: Donny is out? 8 Hours, 31 Minutes ago
is very strange that los lobos will be touring without David Hidalgo foster's Profile indicates that the user is from Italy, not that that means anything. B)

Make of all this what you will, people. I've done enough detective work for today.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by LaughsLikeTheFlowers - 2009/03/07 14:13

I'm content to wait a couple of weeks and then we'll know for sure.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by foster - 2009/03/07 15:29

I am Michele Talo,
I don't know anything... i have only asked at expectingrain.com if they know much about the information that i have read in wikipedia about the fact that Hidalgo will be touring with Bob..
I found the notice only because i search the name Hidalgo when i have heard that he plays accordion on the next album.
Personally I think that it will be very strange because the los lobos are touring.
I have read that Stu will be touring.
I hope that herron remains.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by lamaggot - 2009/03/07 16:46

i am according to ryan adams, a maggot.

im from la.

so i am lamaggot.

i work for a music publisher.

we administer the special rider catalog.

the studio players will not be touring with bob dylan.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by josepi - 2009/03/07 18:39

lamaggot wrote:

i am according to ryan adams, a maggot.

im from la.

so i am lamaggot.

i work for a music publisher.

we administer the special rider catalog.

the studio players will not be touring with bob dylan.

Then who will be?

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by AutodesSchreckens - 2009/03/07 23:41

Well, let's see:

Stu claiming via his website that he will be on the tour starting in March. Unless Bob is playing a cruel trick he'll be there.

Denny, while not having his website updated in quite some time, also links to the Euro tour dates. If he had resigned or got fired, he probably would have removed the link.

Donnie, well, no info there, as far as I can see. (Doesn't mean anything as far as I'm concerned).

David Hidalgo, he is on tour with Los Lobos until a day before the Dylan tour ends in Dublin. Highly unlikely, not even for a guest stint at the 2nd London show that some people hope to be some sort of album release party.

Paul James, well, interestingly enough he has shows booked through March 13 and - if I'm not mistaken - at least his website lists no further shows beyond that date, although James usually has quite a busy schedule.

It's not unusual for Bob to change something in the band's line-up right after an album session (Campbell joined barely eight weeks after the "TOOM" sessions, Kemper lasted only one more tour after "L&T") and Paul James guesting last fall looked more like an audition 1990-style rather than an old friend joining for an encore or two.

Draw your own conclusions.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Garilia - 2009/03/08 21:08

Warren wrote:

Before I speak to what PSB said on Page 2 of this thread, I'm going to summarize the current talk about band member replacements about the tour, only. Some remarks will be repeated. If I've got it right, the talk seems to have begun with this post in Ferris92's thread, April Release?, wherein arthurprecarious said this:

Re:April Release? 1 Week ago

I hear that there are 10 songs which feature some of The Heartbreakers and David Hildago from Los Lobos. Three additional songs have been recorded for a movie.

Also the two guitarists (Stu and Donny) will be replaced on the upcoming tour. One of the replacements will be Paul James.

The emphasis is mine. Three posts later, songanddanceman said, "stu and denny." A day beyond that, precarious added that his source said that:

"...the two guitarists would be replaced."

Then, today, we have a new thread, as follows, titled, Donny is out?:

Love And Communication (User)

Fresh Boarder

Posts: 3

Donny is out? 12 Hours, 11 Minutes ago

QUOTE:

14 - David Hidalgo "In March this year, David Hidalgo will be touring with Bob Dylan for his European Tour." - (Wikipedia) from Michele Talo

Source: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/David_Hidalgo

Los Lobos page: <http://www.loslobos.org/site/band.shtml>

Could be an option...

The apparent suggestion or inference that Love And Communication seems to be making from their reference to the expectingrain news item, here, is that Hidalgo, a multi-instrumentalist, could be an option to replace multi-instrumentalist, Donny Herron. I agree. He could be. Simply put, it's possible. Now to your remarks, Peter:

PSB wrote:

Warren wrote:

Obviously, I missed that. Thanks for the "heads up," Cath.

Possibly, Los Lobos will play on without Hidalgo, which is what Donnie Herron's band did when Herron left to play with Bob. Ftr, and perhaps worth keeping in mind, Hidalgo is a multi-instrumentalist. Not worth keeping in mind at all. Sheesh! "At all?"

Hidalgo pretty much is Los Lobos. He is the obvious leader, the main songwriter, the main singer. I am aware of that. It doesn't necessarily mean that he doesn't want a change at this juncture in his life, does it?

It would be like Dire Straits without Mark Knopfler, the Kinks without Ray Davies, the Byrds without Roger McGuinn, and a million other examples. Just because someone plays on someone's album does not mean they are going on tour with them, Of course not.

and ESPECIALLY when a band has an entire tour booked. Well, as you can see, I didn't realize that, initially, until cath brought it to my attention. Had I realized that, in the beginning, I would have likely made a point of saying so. I think you know me well enough to know that that is something I'd probably do.

There's lots of reasons musicians play on various sessions, but usually it is because a musician has a particular sound that is right for that particular song or recording.

Now, I made reference, above, to one Michele Talo, the person who apparently informed expectingrain.com of the Hidalgo entry (presently, without a citation), in Wikipedia. Talo has an association with the Italian Dylan website, Maggie's Farm, as does one Paolo Vites, an Italian music journalist. They are known to each other. Vites is a person who, because of his occupation, is sometimes privy to information about musicians that isn't immediately available to the public. Vites will be known to some people, at The NEP, as Roving Gambler, his user name (or, one of them) at DylanPool.

Oh yeh, one last thing is this poster's first post:

foster (User)

Fresh Boarder

Posts: 1

Re: Donny is out? 8 Hours, 31 Minutes ago

is very strange that los lobos will be touring without David Hidalgo foster's Profile indicates that the user is from Italy, not that that means anything. B)

Make of all this what you will, people. I've done enough detective work for today.

This astounds me. The amount of time you would put into clarifying your position on the various rumors surrounding the upcoming tour. I wish I had that free time! The admins need to make you Pooler of the month for reviving the pool with some topically irreverent conversation.

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by Love And Communication - 2009/03/08 22:31

:laugh:

=====

Re:Two New Tour Guitarists? Looks Like It

Posted by nyx - 2009/10/16 07:12

i like the band the way it is.. and i still wish Denny was there too. Tony Has to stay.. hes the glue that keeps the show thumpin..and i just love to see his smilin face on stage.. Each person brings their own to the band as a whole, and i hope they all keep it comin~~ Thats just my opinion..i know some people want this one or that one to come or go but really..where some bands have fallen apart after so many years together, this one seems to pick up speed. Besides, the point is, no one is going back to What It Was. Thats never been the way of these cowboys, thankfully~~!! Keeping it new, keeping it fresh, keeping it together~!
I cant Wait to see them again!

=====